

1

Confidence is the key

Even if you wear the most expensive coat and tie, nothing beats having the right attitude and confidence during an interview. Research about the company, smile, and be confident.

2

Online presence

Be mindful on what's on your Facebook and LinkedIn accounts.

Remember that you are what you post on social media to a hiring manager.

3

Stop looking at the wrong place

Don't limit your search on job posts alone.

Find other ways to grow your network. You may ask help from friends, research on the Internet and even try walk-in applications.

4

Rejection

Losing a job interview is not the end. You should not take rejection personally but use it as a motivation in your next job search.

SORRY

5

Listen to advice

One of the reasons why a job search fails is ignoring someone you trust or an expert's advice. Remember that you can gain something useful from someone's experience.

6

Lacks enthusiasm

Another common reason why a lot of candidates miss their chance of getting hired is the lack of enthusiasm to engage with the interviewers.

Confidence only does half of the job.

SOURCES:

<http://www.brazen.com/blog/archive/job-search/6-reasons-your-job-search-is-failing-big-time/>
http://www.huffingtonpost.com/carlot-zimmerman/6-surefire-ways-to-ensure_b_5748880.html

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE VISIT OUR WEBSITE AT

 resumeprime